BE PREPARED

By this time you should have your UNIT packed and ready to go. Make a point to get lots of sleep the night before your move and start your day with an energizing breakfast. It's a good idea to keep all utilities connected through your move date. This ensures you have power and water to do final cleaning.

You should also, by this time, have coordinated the pick up and/or delivery of your storage UNIT, weather it is being delivered directly to your new home or to our climate controlled storage facility. If at all possible, plan on dispatching your UNIT personally.

THE LAST LOAD!

The condition of your goods at destination is a direct result of how well you pack and load your belongings. This site includes helpful tips to ensure you can handle these tasks like a pro. Remember to keep your "Essentials Box" handy and make a point to keep "last load" items for the rear of your shipment. (Don't load the vacuum cleaner under tons of other stuff!)

Even if you are hiring outside labor or have volunteers to load your goods, it's important to personally supervise the loading process. Keep track of your inventory list and make sure you are satisfied that your shipment is properly loaded.

STAY IN THE LOOP.

Your personal involvement is important throughout the moving process. Ultimately you are responsible for how your goods are packed and loaded.
